About the program

Modern Manners & Mental Fortitude is a 16-week, scenario-based curriculum focused on applied decision-making, real-world communication, and character development. The program was developed from nearly two decades of law enforcement experience and is structured around Social Emotional Learning (SEL) frameworks with an emphasis on transfer — equipping students to apply skills in real-life situations, not just academic settings. It is designed for high school students and young adults and can be delivered in school, community, and organizational settings.
